A Bear Called Paddington

Michael Bond

Illustrated by Peggy Fortnum

Paddington Abroad is a children's book written by Michael Bond and illustrated by Peggy Fortnum. It was first published in 1958 and has since become a classic of children's literature. The book tells the story of Paddington, a polite and endearing Peruvian bear who travels to London and finds a loving home with the Brown family.

Paddington is a beloved character who has been enjoyed by generations of readers. He is known for his gentle nature, his love of marmalade, and his mishaps. The book has been adapted into several television series and films, and has been translated into over 40 languages.

Plot Summary

Paddington Bear is a young bear who lives in the jungles of Peru. One day, he decides to travel to London to visit his Aunt Lucy, who is a famous actress. Paddington arrives in London by ship and is greeted by the Brown family, who live at 32 Windsor Gardens.

The Browns are a kind and welcoming family, and they quickly take Paddington under their wing. Paddington soon becomes a beloved member of the family, and he enjoys all the sights and sounds of London.

However, Paddington's adventures in London are not without their mishaps. He accidentally gets lost in the tube station, he causes a traffic jam by stopping a bus with his marmalade sandwich, and he even ends up in jail after being mistaken for a burglar.

Despite all of his mishaps, Paddington always remains positive and upbeat. He is a kind and caring bear, and he always tries to do the right thing. In the end, Paddington finds a loving home with the Brown family, and he lives happily ever after in London.
